The Washington Post	Except on Russia, Trump never keeps his word "...First, the Trump team chose to make the announcement of all days on Shavuot, one of four so-called festival holidays in the Jewish calendar, which were originally marked by a pilgrimage to the temple in ... Jerusalem, of course. It's the kind of detail that entirely escapes notice in an administration that is populated by amateurs and know-nothings. (One wonders why Jared Kushner, an Orthodox Jew who was tasked with bringing peace to the Middle East, did not speak up. 'Hey, let's wait a few days — or do it before the holiday.' That sort of thing.) He does his friend Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu no favors with the latter's domestic critics, who have no qualms about pointing out that Netanyahu's chumminess with Trump does not pay real dividends. Second, this comes at a time when the world is learning to disregard everything this president does and says — when the United States behaves in unpredictable and hypocritical ways. Trump seems to expect other countries (like his own cultist followers) to ignore that the emperor	JENNIFER RUBIN	US-Israel relations, Jerusalem

Daily Mail	Trump WON'T relocate U.S. embassy in Israel to Jerusalem yet as he signs order keeping it in Tel Aviv for now – but Sean Spicer says the move will happen eventually A 1995 law threatened State Dept. funding if the embassy remains in Tel Aviv, but Clinton, Bush and Obama sidestepped the requirement with a built-in waiver. Now Trump has followed suit, extending their actions by another six months. President has signaled that he wants to move the embassy to Jerusalem. For now, however, he's holding off in the interest of not angering Palestinians while he's trying to foster a peace deal. White House press secretary says Trump 'has repeatedly stated his intention to move the embassy' so 'the question is not if that move happens, but only when'.
