Bloomberg	As Trump Goes. So Goes Netanyahu "...Unlike Trump, Netanyahu is a master politician. So what is he up to? Netanyahu has clearly noted that Trump's tactics are working. Those who attack Trump seem not to survive, while Republican leaders like House Speaker Paul Ryan have been careful not to cross the blatant anti-Trump line. Trump's unpredictability is also an enormous challenge for Netanyahu as he seeks to protect Israel in a turbulent region that the president clearly does not understand. It seems that the prime minister has opted for fawning as a protection against any future dustup with the American president. It is clever, and in the short run, it may work for Israel. But the dangers of this strategy are far-reaching. Trump's attacks on the press, the judiciary and even America's culture of civility will do damage, but that can be undone by the leaders who will follow. Israel's democracy, however, is not two-and-a-half centuries old; it is less than 70. What the U.S. can weather, Israel may not be able to reverse. Ironically, an Israeli prime minister seeking to protect Israel by mimicking the American president may be doing more damage to his own country than even he comprehends."	DANIEL GORDIS	Benjamin Netanyahu

- The Israel Foreign Media Survey scours the internet (Sunday thru Thursday) for pertinent news articles and editorials affecting Israel appearing in the world's major newspapers and websites for the particular day(s) stated.
- The survey attempts to present only original source articles, occasionally resorting to reprints in special cases.
 - Stories by wire agencies and major newspapers (ex: AP, Reuters, NY Times etc.) often are licensed or sold to smaller market media agencies, and appear in the survey in their original with other publications in parentheses.
